

COVID-19 Virtual Clinic for Video and Phone Visits

In an effort to offer convenient remote care for patients during the present pandemic, Hawai'i Pacific Health recently launched its COVID-19 Virtual Clinic for video and phone visits to patients and the public. The Virtual Clinic's purpose is to address patients with signs and symptoms of COVID-19 who are well enough to be evaluated without coming to the office and others who have concerns about COVID-19 exposure. It is designed to protect the health and safety of the patient and the care teams by limiting interactions and therefore the spread of COVID-19.

Patients should reach out to their own primary care physician (PCP) for treatment and guidance before contacting the Virtual Clinic. Those patients without a PCP are encouraged to contact the Virtual Clinic directly.

Once in contact with the Virtual Clinic, the clinic will offer video visits with a provider. The virtual team will recommend and facilitate pathways for care and order COVID-19 tests when clinically appropriate.
